

Lincoln Ave. Project Support Urged

KING BEERS, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, yesterday issued a statement in which he urged East Stroudsburg borough officials not to repeat a previous mistake by shelving the Lincoln Ave. urban renewal plan.

The text of Beers' statement: "We have all been hit hard by the costs involved in installing our new sewer system. Younger people and newer residents of our community may not know that the larger part of this system could have been installed during the 30's at very little expense to us, if any, by the use of Federal Government funds during WPA days. This opportunity was turned down by the Borough authorities of that time. We are paying dearly now for that lack of foresight. Let us not repeat that experience."

"Urban renewal or redevelopment is a method by which the Federal Government assists local communities to clear out blighted areas to make them attractive and readily re-sellable for factories, commercial establishments, etc. who will pay much more taxes to the Borough in addition to all the other benefits such as employing more people, needing more homes for executives and increasing revenue from retail sales.

"The Borough of East Stroudsburg could never assume the cost involved in buying and tearing down the houses now in an area like the Lincoln Ave. tract. That means that we would have to put up with the loss of taxes which will occur over the years as the value of this property goes down, as it inevitably will. (Right now the school taxes paid by these properties are not enough to pay for the school costs of the children in the area.)"

"The Federal Government, through the Urban Renewal Program, offers to assume three-fourths of this loss directly with the remaining one-fourth to be met by the State and Borough. In addition, it will give credit for money spent for public improvements to the area started not more than three years before the final approval of the project."

"This means that we of the Borough of East Stroudsburg are in the fortunate position at this minute, of having more than $500,000 in credit dollars available from the Flood Protection Project, just completed, thus making this whole project possible with an outlay on our part only for our share of boundary street improvements. But we have got to move rapidly and grab this opportunity promptly or we will lose these credits since all red tape, etc., must be completed before the seventh of next July, when the three years expires."

New Post Office
"A lot of rumors have been flying around about the possibility of our getting a new and much larger post office."

"This involves another urban renewal project to clear out what is now a blighted area, namely between Crystal and S. Courtland Streets, and the alley back of the Washington St. stores, and the old cemetery line near Brown St."

"The Post Office building is to be privately owned and leased. In other words, its owners will pay taxes the same as anybody else."

"If the Post Office building, as finally built, (and they are in a hurry to go into it) is only half the size now quoted this one building and land (less than one-quarter the total area of the project) will bring in more than twice as much real estate tax to the Borough and Schools than is now paid by all the properties now in the project area."

"There will be over three acres left for other tax-paying business. A supermarket is definitely interested in this location. One such supermarket with a large parking lot should bring in over double the real estate taxes now being paid by the whole area. So you can see that the borough and school district stand to gain new sources of revenue instead of having to raise our taxes to cover the increasing costs which time will bring."

"The only way to keep our taxes from rising, as they inevitably must with the cost of everything going up steadily, is to get into the borough more properties which will share the burden and thus materially slow down or stop the inevitable rise which will come if we do not have more tax base to share the costs."

"What will the borough's one-eighth share of this S. Courtland St. urban renewal project be? It is now conservatively estimated at between $20,000 and $40,000. This does not necessarily involve that much cash outlay by the borough, since we should get credit for cost of improvement work on boundary streets which will be spread over a period."

"And, remember that the same things need to be done for both projects, thus one will not hold up the other. In fact, all things being equal, the S. Courtland St. project could well be completed before the Lincoln Ave. project, since it is so much smaller in size and has buyers ready for all the land."

"To get either or both of these projects approved, the borough must adopt the zoning and technical codes by March to be in time for final Federal approval before next July 7, 1963, when the flood control credits will lapse unless obligated by that time."

"Cities and towns all over the United States are eagerly competing for shares of this Federal assistance even though they usually have to pay much higher local shares than ours. For our relatively small borough to be in a position to handle two such projects totaling over $200,000 is an opportunity which undoubtedly will not be repeated in any of our lifetimes."

"We are hearing a lot about the great increase in industrial, tourist and resort business which will come to this area with the inception and completion of the Tocks Island project and the completion of the Keystone Highway which is part of the great New York to San Francisco Highway 80."

"It should be a matter of great civic pride to all the citizens of our borough that our citizens organizations and borough authorities have studied the problems which will be involved and have moved to meet them. With the Zoning Ordinance already adopted, the imminent adoption of the technical codes, and the active progress being made on these two urban renewal projects, we will be far ahead of and much better prepared to other community or section of profit by this influx than any this part of the state."

FUTILE EFFORT — Firemen continue to pour water on the blazing Columbia Hotel which was leveled by fire yesterday morning. Firefighters from six companies in the rural New Jersey area fought the blaze in the historic landmark.

Columbia Hotel Is Destroyed By Fire

COLUMBIA, N. J.—The Columbia Hotel, a landmark for many years in Warren County, burned to the ground early yesterday morning when firemen were hampered by the lack of water.

Firemen from six companies fought to save the old two-story structure, sections of which dated back more than a century.

The cause, as of late last night, was undetermined and the loss estimated at more than $50,000.

Martin A. Petrucci, owner of the hotel and only occupant, was awakened by the barking of his dog at 2 a.m.

Injured In Escape
He escaped from the burning building by smashing a window on the second floor and leaping to a porch and then jumping to the ground.

In his leap to the ground he injured his heel and was later taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was treated for the heel injury, smoke inhalation, shock and then discharged.

The dog was helped off the roof by neighbors who had summoned firemen.

Knowlton Township firemen were the first to arrive at the scene and reported that flames were raging in the tavern section of the hotel.

Portland Fire Chief William Pinsky said the fire was almost under control when firemen ran out of water. He said, "If we only had 1,000 gallons more we could have saved the building."

Other companies responding to the alarm were from Belvidere, N. J.; Blairstown, N. J.; Hope, N. J., and Mount Bethel, Pa.

Water Problems
Firemen were only 500 yards from the Delaware River but were forced to go about 75 feet out on the ice on the river before they were able to chop a hole for a source of water. Thick ice along the shore forced them out on the river.

During this period the fire had spread rapidly through the entire building. Firemen had used, as a temporary source of water, cistern just north of the hotel.

Heat from the fire was so great that windows in the store owned by Robert Hammill, on the opposite corner, were broken. Firemen wet down the store and applied a coating of foam on the steaming roof to keep the fire from spreading.

The hotel was located on the corner of Decatur and Columbus Sts. The original portion was built by John J. VanKirk in 1828. He served as Warren County Sheriff from 1851 to 1854.

At one time the hotel had a wide reputation for its excellent dining room.

Several additions were made through the years and the hotel had been extensively renovated in the last decade. It had gained popularity, in later years, for sportsmen making trips to Warren County for hunting and fishing trips.

Petrucci had operated the hotel the past four years.

Rolvaag Drops In Recount
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The unofficial recount lead of Karl Rolvaag, Democratic candidate for governor of Minnesota, fell from 133 to 122 Monday as the trial of disputed ballots opened before a three-judge state court.

Rolvaag's loss came without any action by the court. Rolvaag started the recount proceedings after the state canvassing board ruled that Republican Gov. Elmer L. Andersen had been re-elected by 142 votes in the Nov. 6 election.

The preliminary recount, including several thousand disputed ballots, gave Rolvaag a 133 vote lead. This figure is unofficial but its accuracy has been agreed to by both factions.

The court itself has announced no cumulative count in the recount.

C. L. Nelson, attorney for Rolvaag, told the court he and attorneys for Gov. Andersen had agreed that certain votes originally in dispute should be discarded.

Gov. Andersen is holding over as chief executive until the end of the recount proceedings, a month or more in the future.

He has full powers as governor. He may sign legislation and may make appointments, which if confirmed by the Minnesota Senate, cannot be overturned. His signature on acts of the legislature, now in session, also has full force and is not open to legal attack.

Rolvaag suffered a net loss of 121 votes in the first 2 of 24 categories of disputed ballots to be presented to the court. He lost 119 in the first category and 10 in the second, but regained 8 in the third.

Nelson and Richard Kyle, attorney for Andersen, went over the ballots one by one with the three District Court judges.

District Judge J. H. Sylvestre of Crookston, presiding, told the attorneys that so far as possible the judges will make their decisions as the trial proceeds to escape an impossible pileup.

Fliers' Deaths Confirmed:

Cuba Denies Its Fighters Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Mansfield, Senate Democratic leader, confirmed Monday night that four Americans lost their lives in the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in April 1961.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader, had said earlier that four Americans were lost in the ill-fated invasion attempt. He said they flew unmarked planes in support of the invasion force.

Cuban freedom fighters made the abortive invasion effort. Mansfield said in a statement: "It is known that a few experienced American airmen were employed to train Cuban pilots, navigators and radio operators. Because of exhaustion of Cuban pilots, several of these Americans volunteered to fly combat missions. Apparently a decision was made by those directing operations to accept this offer. Several planes were attacked and four of these Americans lost their lives."

Asked if the four Americans were those mentioned by Dirksen, Mansfield said they were.

Dirksen said he will make public this week the results of his one-man investigation of the invasion. It will contain the names of the four fliers, he said.

The Defense Department has declined to comment.

Formal Denial
Meanwhile, Cuba denied formally Monday that its jet fighters fired on a U.S. shrimp boat, said Sen.

Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., charged that there is no coherent and consistent policy on Cuba worthy of bipartisan support.

The Cuban denial, delivered by the Czech ambassador, Miloslav Ruzek, said the Cuban warplanes were searching for two small boats stolen from a fishing cooperative when they spotted the shrimp boat Feb. 20. The United States immediately rejected the Cuban explanation.

The jets approached the shrimp boat and then flew away, without firing, the note said.

Eyewitnesses

But U.S. Marine fighter pilots reported they saw the incident and saw the jets fire rockets which came within 40 yards of the shrimp boat, the Ala. The MIGs fled when the U.S. planes approached. A subsequent U.S. note of protest called the incident an "unprovoked and willful attack."

The United States has said the shrimp boat was in international waters.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White described the Cuban note as "purely propaganda," and said the United States would not make a formal reply.

In a statement, White said the Cuban note contained several "new trumped-up charges that the U.S. government was involved in alleged attacks on Cuban fishing vessels."

White did not give details of the new charges, but he indicated they were similar to ones made recently by Havana press and radio.

Keating resumed the political dialogue on Cuba in a Senate speech.

Keating Supports Action
"I strongly believe in a bipartisan foreign policy," he said, "and when the President takes action, either successfully as in October or unsuccessfully as at the Bay of Pigs, he can expect bipartisan support without recriminations of any kind."

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, Democratic leader, answered Keating by saying it is not possible to lay down a "pat policy" on Cuba.

In other Cuban-controversy developments Monday: Rep. K. W. Stinson, R-Wash., after a weekend visit to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, quoted Cuban sources as saying 70 per cent of the Cubans would fight against Premier Fidel Castro if the Russian soldiers and technicians were removed.

Stinson also reported a shortage of food, fuel, medical supplies and physicians in Cuba.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., who also made the trip to Guantanamo, said he is convinced the Soviet Union has no long-range missiles in Cuba.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., said in a House speech the slogan "remember the Ala" should "be the signal for blistering U.S. retaliation" against Cuba.

JFK Backs $10 Billion Tax Slash

Will Support Any Means To Effect Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy said Monday he will support "whatever is necessary" to get a three-year tax cut of at least $10 billion.

Kennedy even indicated he would accept a $13.6-billion rate cut and the complete scrapping of his proposals to partly offset lower rates through changes in the tax laws.

The President went much further than before in revealing how far he might go to win passage of a 1963 tax cut. Appearing at a symposium on economic growth, sponsored by the American Bankers Association, Kennedy said:

Must Be This Year
"I would say the important thing is to get the bill this year. Whatever is necessary to get that bill, I would support."

Kennedy's remarks came during an unscripted question-and-answer session after he delivered a major address on tax policy.

The address itself was a sharply worded reply to those who have attacked his top priority tax package because it comes at a time of rising federal deficit and a growing national debt.

Kennedy's most significant statements came, however, in the question session that followed. These were some of his major points:

—The administration still believes that three-year rate cuts of $13.6 billion should be coupled with changes in special tax benefits that would reduce the net tax cut to $10.2 billion.

—However, if Congress wants to scrap the proposed benefit changes, Kennedy would like the rate cuts scaled down to about $10 billion.

—At the same time, the President said, Congress might decide to accept the full $13.6 billion of rate cuts without taking any offsetting action. Perhaps significantly, he did not couple this statement with any hint of overriding objections.

—If we are going to err," he said, "I would certainly err on the side of a large enough tax cut—not to go through this laborious, painful procedure . . . and then bring forth a mouse."

He expressed a fear that Congress might pass a tax cut of less than $10 billion and suggested this would be inadequate.

Kennedy's clarification of his position came on the 50th anniversary of the income tax amendment to the constitution. It coincided with release of an Associated Press survey which showed that any prospective income tax cut already has been eroded by increased Social Security taxes and higher postal rates, and is threatened still further by prospective increases in state and local taxes.

County Library Seeks $10,666

MRS. Florence Scholla and Atty. Dedeff Hansen yesterday submitted a request for $10,666 to the Monroe County Commissioners for the Monroe County Public Library. The money was requested for the library's 1963 budget.

The commissioners contributed $8,500 to the library in the 1962 county budget.

The increase of $2,166 is sought to make the library eligible to receive $6,375 from the state. The request showed the largest portion of money is earmarked for salaries, books, magazines and re-binding of books.

Breakdown

The librarian is to be paid $4,700, an increase of $226.64 above the 1962 salary. The assistant librarian will receive $2,900, an increase of $226.62; the junior department librarian will be paid $3,000, an increase of $280.18 over last year's salary.

The amount stated for books, magazines and re-binding was $6,375. This is a hike of $88.02 over the 1962 budget.

Other expenditures were for utilities, insurance and miscellaneous items.

The report showed that during 1962 the bookmobile made 84 trips, visited 16 schools, and 127 classrooms. Also, that summer service had been extended to Kunkelton, Mount Pocono and Tobyhanna every other week.

The commissioners did not take any action on the request but said they would take it under advisement. They are working on the 1963 county budget.

Mrs. Bayliss' Death Ruled Accidental

THE death of a former Barrett Township woman on Maryland's Eastern shore has been ruled accidental as the result of a fall. Mrs. Kathryn Pitts Bayliss slipped on a rug in her home and hit her head on a table, causing a hemorrhage, it was announced Saturday by Henry Turner, Talbot County state's attorney at Easton, Md.

State Police had held her husband, Charles W. Bayliss, Jr., 47, for two days of questioning after he called a physician Jan. 25 and told him she thought Mrs. Bayliss was dead. The physician notified police. Police said Mrs. Bayliss was covered with bruises and had been dead for 36 hours when they found her body in bed at the Bayliss estate near Tilghman, Md. An autopsy indicated alcoholism, traces of epilepsy and a hemorrhage caused by a blow on the head, police said.

The woman's husband was found not guilty on a charge of aggravated assault and battery in Monroe County Court on Sept. 23, 1959. The charge grew out of an incident in Bayliss' home in March, 1959, in which Lamar Price of Canadensis was wounded in the left ankle by the charge from a 12 gauge shotgun.

Bayliss contended before and after his trial that he shot Price accidentally after ordering him to leave the house after he found Price in the act of having sexual intercourse with his secretary, who became his wife on May 21, 1958.

Bayliss claimed the woman was unconscious at the time Price assaulted her. The jury placed the costs of the trial on Bayliss.

For some 13 years he was a member of the Bangor School Board and served as its president in the 1900's. During World War I he was active in the sale of Liberty Bonds and was amazed to find that area farmers at that time kept their money in sugar jars in their homes instead of in banks. He retired as an employee of the D.L. and W. Railroad in 1944 and up to six years ago was an ardent daily golfer. An avid reader, the Holy Bible is included in his daily readings. When asked as to his reading preference he noted that the old standard version of the Bible was still his favorite. Disaster Area

Every time we think the mess in the city of Washington, D. C., has been fully exposed, along comes another item. The Federal City is taking on the appearance of a disaster area, not through natural calamity but through mismanagement so massive that only the Federal Government's vast resources could have accomplished it.

Now a General Accounting Office spot survey of the relief program for the totally disabled has shown that more than half those enjoying the taxpayers' charity were ineligible. One recipient, as a matter of fact, had been dead for a while. You can't be more totally disabled than that, granted, but he hadn't even been eligible while he was alive.

Some had jobs, some were drawing Social Security, some were being supported by their families, and so on. Your money was being paid to them, and the public servants in charge of your money didn't find out in years of working on the cases the vital information that the GAO was able to turn up in a few days.

Before this investigation, another determined that 75 percent on the general relief rolls were drawing the money illegally, some because they happened to be in jail, and that 58 percent of the relief payments for dependent children were illegal.

In Washington, the natives hate to see that evening sun go down, because muggings in the shadow of the Capitol are as common as starlings. Major crime has risen 17 percent in the latest month surveyed. A Congressman was a recent victim.

After a Thanksgiving Day race riot in the elaborate new District stadium, a bi-racial committee reported that discipline in Washington schools is almost nil.

The Capital city is the exclusive responsibility of the Federal Government and the residents who pay far above average taxes, have no say in local affairs. Things have gotten so bad, that Washingtonians now say the only way to straighten them out is to let the people run their own affairs, not the Federal Government.

The Government, then, will be freer to extend its expert knowledge of how to run cities, run schools and fight crime in our communities everywhere else in the nation, as it proposes to do. It's a cheerless prospect, somehow.

Space Study In Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania is among the states with colleges and universities which are cooperating with the government in advanced space study.

The latest cooperative program is at Pennsylvania State University which has selected fields of study for 10 new graduate traineeships in space science to be sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

This is part of a nationwide effort to boost the number of scientists and engineers trained in space technology. It will support the fellows for three years of study and research, providing they do satisfactory work. With departmental allowances, NASA support for the three years will total about $180,000.

Among the fellowships are two in radio-astronomy, two in astronomy or the science of the upper atmosphere, and one each in solid state technology, meteoric studies, rocket power sources, engineering mechanics, spectroscopy and astrophysics and in the physics of metal surfaces.

The cooperating institutions were selected by the national agency not only because they have doctoral programs in space-related science and engineering but also because of their willingness to undertake a strengthening of their programs in these important areas.

The students to be selected for this special program will enter the university in September. There will be monthly stipends for each graduate chosen, with allowances also being available for those having dependents.

It is good to know that Pennsylvania has the facilities available and the qualified educators to provide this advanced training in space technologies. There are also many talented young men who are anxious to pursue these difficult studies.

John Chamberlain

JFK, Teddy Roosevelt

It is a source of great satisfaction to know that President John F. Kennedy is a close student of the life and times of Theodore Roosevelt. The Kennedy admiration for "T.R." was plainly manifest when a reminder went out from the White House to the Marines at Camp Lejeune that they would do well to follow the old Rough Rider's recipe for hardiness — a three-day hike of fifty miles, with doubletime during the last half mile and a 300-yard sprint as a conclusion.

Well, now that the President is busy boning up on Teddy Roosevelt's philosophy and accomplishments, we may look to see an improvement in the way we handle our Caribbean policy. Teddy was always an activist when it came to thinking about such strategic spots as Cuba and Panama and the rest of Latin America.

There was that time, for example, when Germany and Great Britain, in order to collect debts, decided to intervene in Venezuela. Working in concert, these two mighty European powers seized some Venezuelan ships in 1902 and instituted a blockade of the Venezuelan coast.

This was clearly a violation of the Monroe Doctrine, so Teddy Roosevelt added his own famous "corollary" to the doctrine and ordered our battle fleet to maneuver off the British island of Trinidad. The Germans and the British promptly backed down.

Then there was the matter of the Panama Canal. "T.R." was not scrupulously ethical about this — he boasted at one time that he had "taken" the canal — but the Cuban government, which owned Panama when we first proposed to cut a waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the isthmus, had agreed at one point to let us go ahead with the construction.

A treaty — the Hay-Herran Treaty — had actually been signed in Washington giving the U.S. perpetual control of a zone across the isthmus and guaranteeing an annual payment to the Colombia government. Shortly after the treaty had been signed, however, the Colombians repudiated their Ambassador. When the Colombian Senate refused to ratify the treaty, T.R. put on his fighting clothes. With American warships standing "protectively" offshore in isthmian waters, a "revolution" took place in Panama — and a newly created Panamanian government went on to give the U.S. permission to build the canal.

Roosevelt was severely criticized in later years for alleged duplicity in the affair of the Panamanian Revolution, but he always denied that he had done anything wrong. "I did not lift my finger to incite the revolutionists," he said. "I simply ceased to stamp out the different revolutionary fuses that were already burning." It is doubtful, of course, that this tells the whole story of the manipulation that went on behind the scenes, but the fact remains that construction of the Canal was subsequently carried through to completion and the whole world has benefited for many years thereby.

Even before he was President, Teddy Roosevelt was a Caribbean activist. The minute that the U.S. had decided that we must go to war to free the Cubans from the oppression of Spain, Teddy resigned his Washington job as Assistant Secretary of the Navy to organize his regiment of Rough Riders. He performed valiantly at the battle for San Juan Hill, leading the Rough Riders in a famous charge.

Some people thought Roosevelt's action near San Juan was vainglorious, and Finley Peter Dunne's Mr. Dooley later observed that "Teddy" was book about the campaign should be called "Alone in Cuba." But no matter what Roosevelt's motives may have been, it was obvious that he had the will to "do what it takes" to keep foreign powers out of the Caribbean area.

So, now that John F. Kennedy is reading up on the life and times of Theodore Roosevelt, I am sure that Castro's days are numbered, and that Khrushchev will eventually get the yoke-haul out of the Western Hemisphere.

To be sure, the chance of detouring a possible atomic holocaust must have its restraining effect on Kennedy's movements, but the President has by no means exhausted the mileage that can be had out of such things as economic blockade. Teddy Roosevelt's ancestry was partly Dutch, which perhaps made him extra stubborn about getting his way. However, there is an old saying that "it takes the Irish to beat the Dutch."

Before JFK's first term is out we confidently expect to see the Monroe Doctrine brought really up to date by the addition of the Kennedy Corollary to the Roosevelt Corollary.

Among the frustrated victims of New York's long-lived newspaper strike are theatrical press agents and their clients.

When a rumor was set afoot that actress Bette Davis had died her lawyer immediately placed a phone call to her home. The show business newspaper, Variety, reported that Miss Davis told Atty. Tom Hammond, "With the New York newspaper strike on, I wouldn't consider it."

Colossus Of Roads—1963

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg—Two seats in Pennsylvania's Legislature have produced a rather interesting complexion change—to the surprise of many on Capitol Hill.

This week has become quite evident ever since two special elections were held a week ago—one to fill a seat in the House of Representatives, the other a vacancy in the State Senate.

Both were caused by deaths of the incumbents—Representative Samuel B. Denison in the case of the House seat from Jefferson County, and Senator Samuel B. Wolfe, of the 27th Senatorial District comprising Northumberland, Union and Snyder counties.

Both were Republican legislators. The districts generally are considered rather "safe" GOP districts. The outcome of the special elections a week ago seemed to indicate that the two districts continue to be GOP strongholds when Republican successors were duly elected—former Punxsutawney Mayor L. Eugene Smith in the case of the House, picking up the Denison seat, and Milton attorney Preston B. Davis filling the senatorial shoes of Samuel B. Wolfe.

That the two GOP aspirants would emerge the victors was almost a foregone conclusion—but their margin of victory was something else. Democrats had hoped to produce at least an "eating-in" effect in the two districts—but if anything the returns showed rather painfully that they were being eaten out.

The Jefferson County House seat was won by GOPster Smith by a two-to-one vote while, Davis in winning the Senate post won by a three-to-one showing.

But more significant than almost anything else was the fact that the two campaigns were waged in the somewhat theoretical proposition of either for or against the new-in-office Republican Scranton Administration.

The outcome generally is viewed by Capitol Hill Republicans as a strong indication of a substantive show of support of the administration and its policies—the first such "test" since Mr. Scranton landed into office last November as Pennsylvania's first GOP chief executive in eight years.

In fact the Governor himself, with proper gubernatorial restraint a shade this side of exuberant heel clicking in mid-air, allowed at his last press conference that he was "extremely pleased with the results," alluding to the two wins as "the biggest victories we've had in both places in a long time."

While all this has taken place, the fact remains that administration forces have strengthened their seat somewhat tenuous hold in both the House and Senate, upping their seat tally in the case of the lower chamber to 109 GOP seats to 101 for anti-administration Democrats (with 106 votes needed for legislation passage). In the Senate too the ticklish 26-23 GOP edge has been sharpened with a now one-vote-to-spare count above the 26 needed for control in that chamber.

In other words, all in all, the administration's hand has been strengthened in both legislative houses but while this "mechanical" facet has developed, another perhaps more critical point is in evidence.

GOP legislative leaders in both House and Senate privately have been somewhat edgy regarding pushing—with any great depth—some of the more far-reaching Scranton Administration programs—uncertain as to whether they would be building up a negative reaction among the populace.

The strong showings produced in the two legislative run-offs seemingly have reassured most that the negative potential is more positive than anything else. It is expected to mark the beginning now of strong, reassured legislative pushes on the part of the Scranton Administration.

The home of Jefferson Harrison in Cresco was completely gutted by fire of unknown origin.

Kennedy's Summit

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The increasingly frequent exchange of secret letters between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev is a new form of summitry.

While outwardly the two national chiefs are not conducting direct first-hand negotiations, actually that is exactly what they are doing.

A specific instance of this backstage summitry is Cuba, on which Kennedy and Khrushchev have been carrying on an extensive correspondence.

The same is true on the vital issues of disarmament, a nuclear test ban, South Vietnam and Berlin — in each instance involving letters whose existence has never been revealed.

This highly significant development of secret U.S.-USSR negotiations is spelled out in detail in a National Security Council policy paper that is being circulated among top officials and ambassadors for their information and guidance.

Prepared under the direct supervision of McGeorge Bundy, special foreign policy adviser of the President, and Dr. Walt Rostow, head of the State Department's Policy Planning Council, this key document states:

"We should welcome temporary and partial accommodations or detentes with the USSR. We should seek to develop the basis for these agreements by further expanded contracts and exchanges between President Kennedy and the top Soviet leadership which would — unlike formal summit meetings — be viewed by the public as a form of communication, while actually involving negotiations."

"To the extent possible in the existing climate, the U.S. should grant the USSR the position its status as a great power warrants. We should also hold out by word and deed the prospect of fuller Soviet participation and influence in the community of free nations if and as the Soviet leaders show a genuine interest and will for such constructive participation."

Crisis Management—In addition to negotiating an informal detente with Russia, the President's secret exchanges with Khrushchev have several other major objectives.

As discussed in the top-level policy paper, they are as follows:

"Convey to Moscow a clearer understanding of our intentions . . . so as to avoid or minimize future crises promoted or exploited by the Soviet Union."

"Work out over the longer run tacit understandings with the Soviets as to the ground rules governing our competition throughout the world."

"Close out any crises as quickly as possible with as little violence as consistent with avoiding any net loss for U.S. interests."

Warning U.S. policy makers to expect and prepare for other crises similar to last fall's missile showdown in Cuba, the Bundy-Rostow paper presents a "grand design" for the cautious handling of such war-threatening confrontations, stating:

"Since we must expect a series of crises which the Communists will systematically seek to exploit, it is essential that we not reward this Communist technique by diverting attention and energies from the long-term policies and enterprises on which, ultimately, the success of the free community depends."

"We must, therefore, try to meet these threats in ways which, if possible, reinforce the long-term direction of our policy and minimize the diversionary consequences of our reactions."

"Thus, the Cuban crisis should be used to push and expand the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America; the Berlin crises to help resolve the debate on the role of conventional and nuclear forces in NATO; and the Vietnamese crisis to increase the degree of mutual involvement and support among non-Communist nations in the area."

White House Inside — To speed up communications with his chief diplomatic and military advisers, President Kennedy has ordered far-reaching changes in the delivering of messages between the White House and State and Defense Departments.

Pneumatic tubes to transmit communications direct to the President, are being installed between the White House and the two Departments. The President has also ordered a second tunnel built between the White House and Executive Office Building, across the street that houses the staff of the National Security Council.

One of the most modern communication systems in the country will link President Kennedy's new house atop "Rattlesnake Mountain" in Virginia with Washington. The system will link the weekend retreat with the White House, State and Defense Departments, and will cost more than $100,000 — about the same amount as the luxurious eight-bedroom estate.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Along with candy, flowers and fruit baskets there ought to be a place where people about to visit kith and kin in the hospital (and they are different; kith aren't kin) could stop off to collect some pretty bauble of conversation.

There's nothing so deflating to both visitor and visited than to come with full hands and head empty of all but the opening question, "How are you feeling?" and then stand there with a commiserating expression on your face. Obviously, they aren't feeling well or they wouldn't be there, and also times out of ten they'd rather not examine how they feel too closely.

The trouble is that it would be difficult to keep a fresh stock of anecdotes, gossip and jokes since it only takes one visitor with a new one to make it secondhand by the next visiting hours.

But it sure is a good place to collect them. The whole second floor was agog with the excitement of a romance the other day when the young honeymoon couple injured in a sledding accident were brought in. With the hospital crowded to the doors, their two beds were side by side in the corridor where all the ambulatory patients could watch them holding hands across the night table.

But it didn't last long because they went home by ambulance, trying to get there with their strained backs before all the silly postal cards they'd mailed to friends before the accident arrived.

Matter of fact, the hospital

Total Home Beauty Achieved Only Through Harmony Of All Of Its Rooms

Planning harmony is no accident. The well-dressed woman, the delectable meal or the unforgettable melody all result from the careful blending of many possible ingredients.

So it is with the harmoniously decorated home, says The Home Furnishings Industry Committee. Each ingredient is selected for its contribution to the total effect.

Fortunately, money plays a secondary role, for a large furnishings budget is not a prerequisite for an interesting decor.

Our First Lady's favorite designer, Oleg Cassini, recently commented in a national publication that one of the best dressed women he knew was a secretary. Similarly, some of the loveliest homes are done on a limited budget.

But, as with the well-groomed woman, the total look is achieved by close attention to each part. Your house is not a few separate rooms, but a total home. Any one room left to chance will undoubtedly look it and destroy any semblance of harmony within the total decor.

As each home is the sum of its parts, it is well to know all the ingredients that compose it.

First of all, there are certain architectural facts that cannot be denied. They include room size, placement of windows, fireplace, doors, built-ins, etc. They should be studied for the contributions they make to the effect you want. And if they don't help? Learn to practice the art of illusion. Color, wallpaper, mirrors and wallcoverings that simulate architectural effects can help you add depth, heighten, shorten, disguise and overcome defects.

Among the magical ingredients you have for dressing your home are color, fabric, lighting, accessories, window dressings, floor coverings, room arrangement and furnishings. You then must learn to discriminate what you need from a mass of objects

Paris Fashions Reach U. S. In Pictures And Copies

Paris (AP) — Spring and summer came to the Paris fashion world some three weeks ago and now—both budgetwise and geographically—the new styles are within reach of most.

Your hometown store or favorite dress-designer should have a selection of the latest for you. There are new colors that will cheer you and charm your friends. New style features will make over your own personality. If you feel like a change. New hats will give you a fresh outlook on life. There are clothes that will see you through the spring and summer—models that do not have to be extreme to be chic.

Paris fashion photos released today show that Madame 1963 is feminine in her appearance. Her modern pace urges her to adopt a trim, supple daytime silhouette. Her skirts cover her kneecaps and because her figure is always youthful, her bosom is small and well supported. The look is flattened.

By day she picks trim little suits — often belted — that are sometimes a sheath with a tailored jacket. Dior likes them short and snuggler than most. Balmain likes an easy well-tailored look dropped to just below the hips. Cardin shows the longer look, and so do at least 50 per cent of the other designers.

The outdoor daytime picture is not limited to suit jackets. The two-piece smock suit takes over. Sometimes it is in the form of a bloused overblouse, but mostly it's the French peasant smock of boy's shirt that steps forth for every hour, in every color. In every fabric, for the streets for afternoon or for dinner.

I'm not sure what the lady has that is responsible for the tremendous interest in her visit, but the fact is well established that no visiting Queen or Potentate has ever been as enthusiastically welcomed by my countrymen as that there is the Mona Lisa. It is no secret to Wyckoff's that there is a very deep and sincere appreciation of art in this particular locality. The response to our Wyckoff Art Show each year is proof enough. But one is left gasping when faced by the news that 484,000 men, women and children have flocked to the Metropolitan Museum of Art (as of last Tuesday) to see Leonardo Da Vinci's masterpiece.

Because of the interest one encounters everywhere and the discussions one hears, even in the Wyckoff luncheon, as to whether or not the lady rates all this attention, I decided to set up an interview at the Metropolitan. My contact there was Lillian Green, of the Public Relations department, who was somewhat doubtful when she heard I'd arrive Friday afternoon. Friday, being Washington's birthday, was expected to be a record breaking day at the museum, art lovers taking advantage of the holiday.

If all has gone well, you will probably hear the interview either this morning or tomorrow, during our Wyckoff Shopper program at 9:45 over WVPO. If you are a member of the seemingly universal Mona Lisa fan club, be sure to listen!

Rita Laubner of our Fabrics department arrived for lunch the other noon hour all enthused about the new fabric that had just been ticketed. "It's positively beautiful," she said. "It feels exactly like silk and it's washable." After lunch Betty Bartholomew and I took a look, and Rita is right. It's really luxurious, and its name is rather chi-chi too: it's called "10 East". Actually this is 100% Estren, a Belding Corticelli fabric, 45 inches wide, selling at 1.49 a yard. The selection includes abstract and line prints in stunning colors.

Ann Reuhlman tells me this is a particularly fine fabric for lining the jackets of suits to match a blouse. One print, combining a deep rich blue flower with green leaves against a white background, would be very smart made sheath style, with summerbund of emerald green and matching green shoes. I would like such a dress lined, however, and the acetate crepe Ann recommends for this is just 69c a yard . . . Erika Leibert drops by to say her farewells. As of last Friday the family address has been Kingston, Penna., still near enough that she can keep in touch with local friends and shop Wyckoff's. She says she'll still be reading the Wyckoff Shopper column as The Daily Record will arrive in her mail . . . Now in our Handkerchief department is the Elaine Peters combo-tee—a white clutch-style garment with red, white, blue, and black scalloped bands that may be fitted onto the top frame to change the color scheme as one changes one's costume. In its protective lucite case it's just 2.99 plus tax.

A CLASSIC BEAUTY, the "Metropole" Collection of bedroom furniture embodies the simplicity and dignity revered in ageless designs. The expertly shaped doors and their maple burl overlays add design interest and suggest a subtle Mediterranean flavor. The beautifully grained Avodire is enriched by a Serena brown finish and complementary brass hardware. Sanford Furniture Co.

Will Sonny Liston Cancel Match?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Will the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson rematch be held in Miami Beach Convention Hall April 4 as scheduled, or will it be postponed?

This was anybody's guess Monday as speculation centered on Liston's injured right knee. The champ twisted the knee last Thursday while swinging a golf club in a pose for a photographer.

It was rumored Sunday night that Liston would ask for a postponement.

Georgia Blasts Florida

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia Tech used a balanced scoring attack to defeat Florida 89-69 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Monday night.

The victory gave Tech a 10-3 SEC record, and pulled the Yellow Jackets out of a second place tie with Auburn, which lost to Tennessee 55-47. Tech is 21-4 for the season. The loss left Florida with a 5-8 slate in the league and 12-13 overall.

Tech can clinch second place by beating Vanderbilt here in its final conference game Saturday. A victory probably would put Tech into the NCAA tournament as the SEC representative since first place Mississippi State traditionally has declined because of Mississippi's segregation policies.

Keith Weasley, who led Tech with 17 point, scored the opening field goal and the Jackets never trailed the Gators.

Florida's Taylor Stokes, who led the game with 21 points, scored the Gators' first six points in the second half. But the Gators went more than four minutes without scoring and Tech pulled into a 59-30 lead with 14 minutes, 30 seconds left.

Challenges Armies To Try 'Big Swim'

DOVER, England (AP)—A British real estate man challenged the swimmers of the world Monday to send their best swimmers and fight it out in a race across the English Channel.

Wildred Westley, who has tried to swim the channel nine times and always failed, said:

"I am offering two trophies, and I hope we shall get entries from all over the world—even from behind the Iron Curtain. Swimming the channel has lost a bit of its glamor in recent years. It needs a shot in the arm to get it going again."

Last summer, for the first time since World War II, not a single swimmer conquered the 22 mile stretch of water. Bad weather beat everyone who tried—all except two men who did it underwater, wearing frogmen's suits.

No Russian has ever attempted the channel.

Inc., back to Miami Beach from New York, where he had been visiting his family.

After a conference with Jack Nilon, Liston's advisor, Bolan reported, "We're happy to say it was just a scare."

"Liston was feeling some pain in the knee and felt that if it got worse he would have to get a postponement," Bolan said. "But it has improved rapidly and now everything looks okay."

Going Forth

He added that preparations were going forth for an April 4 fight.

About the same time, Nilon reported that Liston's knee "will be fine in another day or so" and that he would resume training after resting another day or two.

Then Nilon told the Miami News he would ask for a week's postponement. He said Liston needed six weeks to get ready "and this is going to take a week away from his training. He has done nothing since Friday, no roadwork or nothing."

After that, both Nilon and Bolan were reported out playing golf and unavailable for additional comment.

Tickets for the fight, scaled from $100 down to $5, went on sale Monday.

Patterson has not yet arrived. He will train at the Tropical Park track, doing his running on the track or in the infield.

Rice Closes 'Incident'

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University's athletic director said Monday an attempted bribe of two basketball players is a closed incident.

"I'm not filing any charges," said Jess Neely.

A sophomore student was expelled from school for offering the bribe on Feb. 14 to two basketball guards, Herb Steinkamp and Dick Cramer.

Neely also announced Saturday a football player, Louis Mazzurana, had lost his athletic scholarship for failure to report the bribe offer.

Mazzurana said Monday he plans to stay at Rice.

"I'm going to practice," he said. "I don't think I did anything wrong, but I am involved. I think I can help myself by not changing schools."

Steinkamp and Cramer said the sophomore offered them $500 each on Feb. 14 to shave points in last Tuesday's game with Baylor. They reported the matter on Feb. 14 to Eddie Wojewicki, the Rice trainer, and Johnny Frankie, the head basketball coach, on Feb. 15.

Georgia Tech A Newcomer

Cincy Retains Top Ranking

The Cincinnati Bearcats stayed on top for the 14th straight week Monday in The Associated Press college basketball ratings, which were almost undisturbed by a sudden return to form.

The six leading teams in the top ten—Cincinnati, Duke, Loyola of Chicago, Arizona State, Ohio State and Illinois—remained in the exact positions they held a week ago.

Then followed Mississippi State, Wichita, New York University and Georgia Tech.

Georgia Tech is the lone newcomer, moving into the select group on a 20-4 record after Auburn, ninth last week, bowed to Kentucky 78-59. The Engineers scored over Tennessee and Georgia and went into 10th place.

Cincinnati, which had its 37-game winning streak snapped by Wichita ten days ago, is not making a runaway of the poll as it threatened to do midway of the campaign.

The Bearcats, who beat North Texas State 91-61 and edged out a decision over Tulsa 55-54, drew only 30 of the 42 first place votes cast by a special panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Ten went to Duke and the other two to Loyola of Chicago.

Base of Vote

On the basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, etc., the Cincinnati team collected a total of 396 points compared with 378 for Duke, which has lost only two games. Duke beat Maryland 76-70 and North Carolina 106-93 to improve its position.

Loyola trampled St. John's of New York 70-47 and Houston 62-58 for 307 points while Arizona State remained in the running for national honors by downing Wyoming 82-72 and New Mexico 72-62. Ohio State won a couple of Big Ten conference games, beating Michigan State 87-77 and Iowa 83-70. Illinois whipped Purdue 87-79 and Wisconsin 89-77.

Mississippi State, with victories over Georgia and Louisiana State, moved ahead of Wichita into the No. 7 spot with Wichita falling back to eighth after bowing to Bradley 64-63.

Improving New York University which broke into the top ten last week for the first time, climbed

Pocono Mtn. Has Revenge As Thorpe Topples, 74-65

POCONO MOUNTAIN — Jim Thorpe was mobbed in overtime last night as Pocono Mountain won a heart-stopping revenge game, 74-65.

The Ryan twins once again led the Olympians to victory. The Pocono Mountain crew now prep for the Class B, District 11, PIAA championship with Fountain Hill at ESSC Friday night.

More than 750 persons watched while the Olympians took a half-time advantage of 29-28 into their dressing room. They saw a determined Pocono Mountain squad fight for every point and tie the game in the last second.

With seconds waning, Jim Thorpe closed the gap and forged ahead. Neil Costanzo took the ball and drove for a basket at the buzzer. He tied the game and was fouled.

Costanzo had the chance to wrap it up, but missed his free-throw. The game went into overtime.

This was a revenge game for the Olympians, as Jim Thorpe beat them 57-56 last week. They took their revenge by overwhelming Jim Thorpe, 11-2, in overtime.

The Ryan boys again shone. Norb led the scoring with 31 points and hit a phenomenal 15 of 17 from the free-throw line. The team as a whole was exceptionally accurate, hitting 26 of 32 from the foul line.

John Ryan was second high scorer for Pocono Mountains with 15 points. Dave Ruchman had 13 points, as the Olympians finished up the season with a 14-3 record.

George Armbruster managed 20 points for Jim Thorpe and Ron Hydro had 17 points.

Jim Thorpe committed 21 fouls while Pocono Mountain committed 10. Jim Thorpe hit seven of their 13 free throws.

The win sends the Olympians into the Class B competition against Fountain Hill with an impressive record, 14-3, better than last year's 15-5 record.

Pocono Mountain could have met Bangor, but a playoff between Bangor and Fountain Hill to see who would play Pocono Mountain was thumbs-downed by league officials.

The district competition will be held in the ESSC gym.

Pocono won the JV tilt, 57-51.

Golf's '3' To Battle In La. Bout

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Golf's big three—Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus — will clash again in the $40,000 Greater New Orleans Open which starts Friday.

Palmer, the 33-year-old golden boy of the play-for-pay swingers, filed his entry Sunday night with tourney officials. He skipped the tourney here last year.

Player and Nicklaus entered earlier.

The 72-hole tourney gets under way Friday on the Cypress treed-lined Lakewood Country Club course. The 7,000-yard layout is laced with water hazards.

This will be the first year for the New Orleans Open on the Lakewood course. In the past it has been held at the municipally-owned City Park course.

Palmer, who knocked down a record $81,448.33 in official PGA earnings last year, is the only golfer to win two tourneys this year. He captured the $50,000 Los Angeles Open and the $35,000 Phoenix Open.

Scheffing Has Pitching Worries

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Starting pitching, a Tiger strong point for years, has become a worry for Manager Bob Scheffing.

The Detroit spring camp officially opened with Scheffing advertising for at least two more starters.

"Our starters aren't the caliber I'd like to have," he said as 18 pitchers and four catchers went through their first workout. "At least they aren't without Frank Lary and we still have to see how well his shoulder responds."

"Right now I'm figuring I have only two starters for sure—Hank Aguirre and Jim Bunning. Maybe Don Mossi also, but we have to find out something about him too."

Campbell Tries Speed Record

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Donald Campbell hopes to make his attempt on the world land speed record at Lake Eyre in April or May after tests with his car, Bluebird, which are due to begin on April 1.
